A photograph of a manuscript page, folio 45v of MS. D i 2, from the Royal Irish Academy. The page is made of aged, yellowish-brown parchment and contains text written in a medieval script, likely Old Irish. The text is arranged in approximately 12 horizontal lines. There are several dark, irregular stains on the parchment, notably a large one in the upper left, a smaller one in the lower left, and a dark smudge near the bottom center. To the right of the manuscript, a vertical ruler is placed for scale, showing markings from 1 to 10 centimeters. The ruler is marked in millimeters and centimeters, with the word 'cm' at the top.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a medieval manuscript. The text is arranged in several lines, with some ink bleed-through visible from the reverse side. The script is dense and difficult to decipher without specialized knowledge of the language and script.

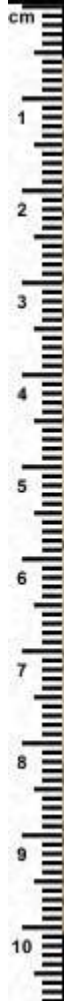

The text on this page is written in a cursive script, likely a form of Old Irish or Gaelic. It is organized into three distinct sections, each separated by a horizontal line. The first section contains approximately five lines of text. The second section, following a horizontal line, contains about four lines. The third section, also separated by a horizontal line, contains about four lines. The parchment is aged and shows some staining, particularly along the right edge. A small, dark, rectangular mark is visible on the right side of the page, near the bottom.
